

McMANES FEELS SORE.

It's His Opinion Senator Quay Has Placed the Republican Party

IN A VERY AWKWARD POSITION.

Collector Martin Says the Prospects of Success This Fall Are

AS BRIGHT AS COULD BE EXPECTED.

Sen. Milton Speer Declares Scott Shall No Longer Lead the Democracy.

THE DISPATCH's staff correspondent at Philadelphia had a number of very interesting talks with prominent politicians. Collector Martin says he does not think the defeat of prohibition will injure the Republican party as much as its success would have done. Now that the suffrage amendment is defeated Hon. E. H. Stuart proposes a law that each voter shall pay his tax himself as a preliminary to voting. Ex-Congressman Speer says the Democrats won't put up with Scott's leadership any longer.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—Mr. McManes' remarks have hardly ruffled the surface. Politicians here are disposed to treat them with good-natured indifference. Messrs. Lane, Leeds, Diston and Martin apparently pay little attention to them, but at the same time they will not lose track of the movements of the old leader. Mr. McManes left town again to-day after ringing the changes on the statement published this morning, remarking bluntly that Mr. Quay had placed the party in a bad position. Collector Martin, in the course of a few remarks to-day intimated that Mr. McManes was not getting all he thought he ought to have these days, and was in consequence feeling a trifle sore about it. Mr. Martin had no idea that Mr. McManes would do anything like this.

"Do you think," he was asked by The DISPATCH correspondent, "that the result of the prohibition election will hurt the Republican party this fall?"

"I don't know that it will," Mr. Martin diplomatically replied. He was then reminded of an admission made by Mr. Quay early in the spring, that whichever way the election went, the party majority would be cut down for a time.

THE REPUBLICANS ALL RIGHT. "I don't think," he replied, "that the defeat of prohibition will hurt the party as much as would its success. The Republican party is all right. It is pledged to the submission of the question to the people, and it has acted in good faith. It was not pledged to support prohibition. That and submission are two different things."

"When will Mr. Quay be here?" "I can't tell. I expected him here last Friday, but he didn't come. He is at his home in Beaver."

David Martin is a fine looking man, of medium height and strongly built. He is dark complexioned and wears a small but vigorous looking mustache. His eyes are bright and steady, his glance penetrating and his mouth firm. Decision of character is plainly one of his distinguishing traits, coupled with a calm, even temperament. He is the kind of man one would readily pick out for the position he fills in politics.

Evidently Mr. Quay has made no mistake in binding him to his political interests, and making him his lieutenant in Philadelphia.

A MAN AFTER QUAY'S OWN HEART. It is only recently that Mr. Martin has become a figure of more local prominence. He and Mr. Quay are the man who recognized the ability and brought him out. He has been well known in local politics as the leader of his own ward, the Nineteenth, and one of the most active and energetic in the city.

Senator Cooper is confident that the Collectorship of Customs will be his for the next month. He is anxious to see the arrangements made to take the place. Hon. C. Wesley Thomas, who is at present a member of the Legislature, was long ago chosen for Senator Cooper's private secretary, when the latter should become Collector Cooper, and it is said the ever-hopeful gentleman has his full staff of subordinates already arranged in his mind.

His bond virtually ready against the time when the President shall invite him to take his seat at the Federal board.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN TAXPAYER. Edwin H. Stuart will go to Pittsburgh on Saturday to rejoice with his brother Macon. While there he will arrange for the September meeting in Pittsburgh of the State League of Republican Clubs. Mr. Stuart, who now that the suffrage amendment has been defeated, proposes that the next Legislature shall pass a law to compel each man to pay his own tax as a preliminary to voting. He wants a law directing that the proper authorities shall, on the morning of each election day, place in the hands of the officers of each precinct a complete list of those who have paid the tax that entitles them to vote. Mr. Stuart recognizes that there is a great evil in the present system and that the payment of the poll tax of voters is a great and growing burden on political parties.

Hon. William L. Scott, of Erie, arrived in town late last night and was gone again today before it was known he had been here. Mr. Scott declined to confine himself to the pen-up limits of the city he honors with his residence, and spread himself on the hotel register as "Pennsylvania."

SCOTT'S LEADERSHIP NOT WANTED. Ex-Congressman H. Milton Speer, who was nominated to an apparent position in the last Democratic State Convention, has been here for several days past, and promises not to be so tractable this year. He says that as a leader Mr. Scott must go.

"The convention must not be run by him this fall," he says, "nor the party's candidate named by him. We must go into the fight under different circumstances. It is time for a change after the disgraceful and humiliating conditions of last year. Some must be sent to the rear, and men set aside who are not needed in their old places."

Horace Geiger, Chairman of the Prohibition or Constitutional Amendment City Committee, to-day caps the climax of his past campaign utterances with an address in which he exhorts Prohibitionists to join the Union Prohibition League and enlist at once in the battle for prohibition. He again blames defeat on the Republican leaders and calls them short-sighted. He closes with the assertion that as long as there is a God, the time will come when the last distillery, brewery and saloon in Pennsylvania will be closed.

A SURPRISE TO POLITICIANS. It is significant of the rapidity with which we move that Mr. Geiger's circular was considered a chestnut. Yet the election was only the day before yesterday, and up to that time all Mr. Geiger had to say was considered interesting by Philadelphia. Just now the defeat of prohibition is lost sight of in the wonder expressed at the defeat of the poll tax and suffrage amendment. It was such high favor among the politicians here that they can't imagine what went wrong in the State. No one had heard any talk against it, and even its few foes here did not anticipate its defeat.

"You can't tell what may happen between now and the State Convention of next year," remarked a Republican worker this evening. "In the last gubernatorial convention Mr. McManes delivered his delegates to Quay for Davies and prohibition. Now he is against Quay, and is trying to cast on him the responsibility for certain things in connection with Tuesday's election. He wants to form a combination with Magee for use next year, they say, while in the last gubernatorial convention he helped Quay defeat Magee's candidate for Lieutenant Governor, Major Montooth, of Pittsburgh.

MAJOR MONTTOOTH'S CANDIDACY. "Time brings about queer changes. McManes wishes he had not done it now. By the way, if Montooth is still a candidate for Governor he need not count on Magee's support, unless he develops a great deal of personal strength—real strength, I mean—in the shape of delegates. Don't be a bit surprised if you find Mr. Magee supporting Hastings. We expect Magee or his lieutenant, Filian, to give Boyer a good majority in Allegheny this fall. It will be policy for him to do so. It will be a big card for him in next year's fight, especially if there should be a falling off in majorities through the State."

"The fact that Boyer is a Quay man is only a stronger reason why Magee should do this. An exhibition of magnanimity in the party's interest won't hurt him a bit. Magee has been badly treated, and it is the duty of a coal of fire in a scriptural way the party will be in a blaze of enthusiasm for him."

SIMPSON. ANOTHER IDEA. Edwin S. Stuart Thinks That Party Organizations Should Not Be Allowed to Pay Poll Taxes—He Will Visit Pittsburg to See About It.

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—Edwin S. Stuart comes forward with a remedy for the evils of the poll tax law. He thinks it is probably best that the suffrage amendment was defeated, if the interest in the matter excited in the agitation of the subject will only result in accomplishing what is generally desired by legislative action. Mr. Stuart will go to Pittsburgh Saturday, where, President of the State League of Republican Clubs, he will make arrangements for the convention of that organization, which is to be held in that city in September.

While in the West Mr. Stuart may have an opportunity to talk over the poll tax question with C. L. Magee, who made a determined fight against the adoption of the suffrage amendment.

"A law should be passed or the present act amended," said Mr. Stuart to-day, "which would compel every man to pay his own poll tax before he would be allowed to vote. The practice of the party organizations, through their city committees, spending large sums of money annually to buy poll tax receipts for citizens who do not qualify themselves, is humiliating and a nuisance. The law should be so modified that no one could vote on a tax receipt purchased for him. The tax receiver could be directed to furnish to the election officers lists of voters who have paid their poll tax, and unless otherwise qualified no one whose name was not on the list should be permitted to vote. The matter should be brought up in the next Legislature."
